

case study:

executive search helps company digitally transform challenge: Nationally recognized real estate firm's CEO & senior HR leadership identified need for a CTO, which was a new position for the client. They needed a trusted talent partner like Randstad Digital to understand their tech challenges and identify a candidate who could help their company through a digital transformation.

solution: Randstad Digital's executive search team helped shape the strategy for the search alongside our client stakeholders. We got clear on the industry experience and technical skills needed and were able to present several qualified candidates despite the tight labor market (New York city).

result: After a thorough vetting and interview process, an exceptional candidate was selected for the CTO role. The client and talent are very satisfied with the match and looking to expand and build their team using Randstad Digital's specialized permanent IT recruiting capabilities.

